Become a Registered User

Take the time to register your LWW/Stedman's software. Registration assures you of continued support and notification of upgrades, as well as special offers on new products. Just go to <http://register.stedmans.com> and submit your information. Your registration number can be found on a sticker located inside your software packaging.

Product Activation

LWW/Stedman's has implemented a product activation process for all of our software products. Product activation is a simple, one-time process that validates you as an authorized user of your Lippincott Williams & Wilkins software. The process verifies that your registration number is valid and that the software has not been activated on more systems than allowed by the Program License Agreement (see p. iii). Product activation does not affect the way the program functions.

Why do I need to activate my product?

The unauthorized duplication and use of personal computer software raises the cost to all legitimate users. Product activation seeks to deter the illegal copying of software programs (piracy) and unauthorized use of Lippincott Williams & Wilkins software, with a minimal impact on licensed users.

When must I activate my product?

Lippincott Williams & Wilkins software products must be activated one time, either upon installation or when you first run the program. After you have activated your product, you will not need to go through the activation process again, unless you switch to a new computer or make a significant change that alters the system registry to your current computer, such as reformatting your hard drive.

How do I activate my product?

You may activate your product over the Internet (recommended for all users who have an Internet connection on the computer to which they install the software), via e-mail, or over the phone.

What if I don't have an Internet connection?

If you are installing on a computer that does not have an Internet connection, you may activate your product via e-mail or over the phone.

How long does product activation take to complete?

Product activation is a one-time process that is completed immediately before or after installation of the software. Internet activation takes 10 to 30 seconds to complete. Phone activation takes about 5-10 minutes to complete. If you request your activation code via e-mail, please allow 48 hours to receive a response.

What happens if I don't activate my product?

You will not be able to use your Lippincott Williams & Wilkins software until we validate you as an authorized user.

How does product activation work?

Product activation is required before you can run or install your software product. During the product activation process, a small amount of information is collected from your computer, including: the product name and version; the operating system name and version; and your computer's processor and hard-disk type. This information is combined and encrypted, then sent to Lippincott Williams & Wilkins along with your Product Registration Number (found on a sticker inside your software packaging) for verification. Once this information is verified, a Response Code is generated which grants you authorization to use the Lippincott Williams & Wilkins program. After the Response Code has been transmitted back to your computer, you can access the program freely.

Where is my product registration number?

Your product registration number, which is used to generate your Activation Code, can be found on a sticker above the CD inside the CD case.

What does Lippincott Williams & Wilkins do with the information sent during the product activation process?

We use the information only to verify that your product is used within the scope allowed by the Program License Agreement. The information is stored in a database used only for product activation. If you register your product, none of the activation information will ever be linked to your personal customer information. Please see our privacy policy for further information.

What if I use more than one computer? Can I install the program on multiple machines?

We realize that many of our customers use more than one computer in their day-to-day work. With this in mind, the product activation process will allow you to use the program on two separate computers, with the understanding that you are the primary user of the software on both computers. Please refer to the Program License Agreement for additional information.

If I install and activate the software on two machines, can more than one person use the software on the second machine?

While you can install and activate your software on two machines, the secondary license is for the exclusive use of the primary user. Allowing an additional person to use your secondary license is in violation of the Program License Agreement.

Do I need to be online to use Lippincott Williams & Wilkins software that includes activation?

Activation is a one-time process. Once you have successfully activated your product, you do not need to be online to use your software.

Is product activation the same as registration?

No. Product activation is a mandatory process that must be completed before you can use your software. Product registration is a voluntary process that ensures that you will be kept informed of new books and software, have access to special discounts and offers, receive free product support, and more.

For more information on becoming a registered user, please see page 2.

If you require additional assistance, or would like to purchase additional licenses to use the software, please contact us at stedmans@lww.com.

Search Functions

The LWW Ready Reference Bookshelf v2.2 program has several flexible search options to help you quickly locate the information you need.

Search Commands

Use search commands in the Search tab to narrow or expand a search.

& or AND Narrows a search by retrieving only those topics that contain both keywords in their definitions. Example: Type acetaminophen & codeine or acetaminophen AND codeine. This search pattern will find all topics that contain both the word acetaminophen and the word codeine.

The AND search command is the default Search type. The program will assume that you are using the AND search command between multiple terms if no other command is used.

! or NOT Narrows a search by retrieving topics that contain the first word but not the second word. Example: Type acetaminophen ! codeine or acetaminophen NOT codeine. This search pattern will find every topic that contains the word acetaminophen but does not contain the word codeine.

OR Expands a search by retrieving topics that contain either the first word or the second word. Example: Type acetaminophen OR codeine. This search pattern will find every topic that contains either the word acetaminophen or the word codeine.

() GROUP search determines the order or priority of the search. Keywords enclosed in parentheses are searched first. Example: Type (acetaminophen & codeine) ! Tylenol. This search pattern will find any topic that contains acetaminophen and codeine, but not Tylenol.

Wildcard Searches

- ? Use the single character wildcard (?) to represent a single unknown character. For example, if you are unsure of how to spell the word Zyvox, type Z?vox to locate the correct spelling.
- * Use the multiple character wildcard (*) to represent multiple unknown characters. For example, if you are searching for the word indomethacin and you know it starts with indo, type *indo in the Search field. You can narrow the search further by adding more letters. For example, if you know the word begins with indo and ends with an n, type *indo*n* in the Search field.

The wildcard character “*” can be used as the first character of a search in the Search Index tab only. Also note that only one wildcard can be used per search.

For example, if you are searching for the word methyltestosterone and you know it ends in tosterone, type tosterone* in the Search field. You can narrow the search further by adding more letters. For example, type ttestosterone* in the Search field.

Fuzzy Searches

- ~ If you are unsure of the correct spelling or would like to locate words that sound similar to the word you are looking for, you can do a fuzzy search using the tilde (~) symbol. For example, if you are looking for a word that sounds like aspearaginase, do a fuzzy search by typing aspearaginase~. Your search results will find a list of possible terms including the correct term, asparaginase.

Fuzzy searches cannot be used with multi-word phrases. Also, fuzzy searches cannot be used in the Search Index tab.

Shortcut Keys have been built into all of the LWW Ready Reference Bookshelf v2.2 menus, so your hands never have to leave the keyboard. Just look for the key combination listed next to the function in the Menu Bar. For example:

Ctrl-P	Print

(Users running Windows 2000 may need to hit the Alt key in order to see underlined letters.)

Please see the Help Files within your program for a complete listing of Shortcut Keys for the individual title you have installed.
