Specific Absorption Rate(SAR) certification information

Your mobile phone is a radio transmitter and receiver. It is designed and manufactured not to exceed the limits for exposure to radio frequency (RF) energy recommended by international guidelines and the guidelines issued by Department of Telecommunication (DoT). These limits are part of comprehensive guidelines and establish permitted levels of RF energy for the general population. The guidelines were developed by independent scientific organizations through periodic and thorough evaluation of scientific studies. The limits include a substantial safety margin designed to assure the safety of all persons, regardless of age and health.

The radio wave exposure guidelines use a unit of measurement known as the Specific Absorption Rate (SAR). The SAR limit for mobile devices is 1.6 W/kg. Tests for SAR are conducted using standard operating position with the device transmitting at its highest certified power level in all tested frequency bands.

It is declared that the SAR value of this Mobile Handset is certified by ILAC and is in conformity with the SAR values of 1.6 W/kg as recommended in the guidelines issued by DOT

The highest SAR values under the ICNIRP guidelines for this device model are:

Maximum SAR for this model and conditions under which it was recorded

Head SAR:0.000W/Kg（1g）
Body SAR:0.000W/Kg（1g）

During use, the actual values for this device are usually well below the values stated above. This is because, for purpose of system efficiency and to minimize interference on the network, the operating power of your mobile device is automatically decreased when full power output of the device, the lower SAR value.
If people are concerned and want to reduce their exposure, they could use a hands-free accessory to keep the wireless device away from the body during use, or reduce the amount of time spent using the device.
