6. Touch Screen Configuration Instructions

6.1 Opening Touch Screen Configuration

- (1) Click "Touch-screen Configuration" in the Start menu;
- (2) The touch screen configuration window pops up:

Touch Screen Configuration Interface

[Note] LCD type only displays in integer, so that the displayed 21-inch is actually 21.5-inch.

6.2 Calibration

(1) Function description

Sometimes due to the hardware installation, the finger clicking position and the cursor position after clicking have larger deviation, and using this feature can calibrate the cursor position after clicking. [Note] Only click the nine cross points with a finger on the black screen for calibrating.

(2) Operation sequence

- A. Click the "Calibration" button on the Basic Settings panel;
- B. The screen turns to black, and only a red spot and eight white spots appear in the screen;

- C. Click the red spot by hand (Note: Clicking at the center of the red spot, the closer to the center, the more accurate the coordinates are). After clicking, the red spot appears in the remaining three corners counterclockwise in turn, please click on the red spot in sequence until the black disappears and the confirmation window pops up;
- D. Click Finish to accept the calibration; click Cancel or do not click (the calibration window will automatically disappear after 5 seconds), and this calibration is invalid.

6.3 Operating Mode Setting

(1) Function description

Multi-touch mode: This mode is available only in the Windows operating systems that support multi-touch; the user can operate with multiple fingers simultaneously and independently of each other.

Mouse mode: This mode simulates the mouse to process the touch points. Generally, this mode is single touch, and multi-touch is only available for TUIO protocol based applications. All operating systems support mouse mode.

(2) Operation sequence

In the Settings panel, select "Multi-touch" or "Mouse" for operating mode, and then click "Apply" or "Done" to confirm, or else the setting will be failed.

Operating Mode Setting

6.4 Advanced Setting

(1) Function description

Right Click Simulation: check Right button analog in mouse mode, click the touch screen and hold, and release to bring up the right button menu.

Support TUIO: Set whether support TUIO. [Note] Some applications require access to messages of touch points via TUIO, or else multi-touch is invalid, it is recommended to reboot the system. However, some applications can handle TUIO messages and system messages simultaneously, which will cause conflict; in this case, disable TUIO.

In addition, you can set the duration of right-click (the time after clicking to call out the right-click menu), double-click speed (interval between two clicks), right-click / double-click range (redundant displacement of finger in the process of right-click or double-click).

(2) Operation sequence

Click the "Advanced Settings" button on the Basic Settings panel to pop up the Advanced Settings window, set the appropriate data and click "Done", and the system will save the data, or click the "Cancel" button to cancel the data setting.

Advanced Settings

6.5 Reset to manufacturer setting

(1) Function description

Restore the advanced settings and coordinate information of the touch screen to factory settings.

(2) Operation sequence

Click the "Reset" button on the Settings panel to pop up the confirmation window, and click "Yes" to restore the factory settings, or click "No" to cancel.

Restore Factory Settings

6.6 Activation

(1) Function description

The touch screen has a 30-day trial period before being activated. If the trial period expires, the touch screen is unavailable. To activate, please apply for the activation code from our company. The shipped touch screens should have been activated.

[Note] Do not re-activate so as not to affect the use.

(2) Operation sequence

Click the "Activate" button to pop up the activation dialog box. The machine's serial number is on the Activation dialog box, and below is the activation code to be entered. Enter the activation code and click the "Activate" button on the dialog box to complete the activation.
