Waiting Orders Analysis Window

This property is a unique functionality of FXPlus. This window displays the buying and selling power of securities based on volume and turnover. The values are comparable with each other, therefore user is able to determine a security's buying or selling pressure.

Also, the total sum of buying and selling orders are calculated. These two indicators can derive a Net Sum calculation which is used as a general market indicator to determine the market direction. Furthermore, we can choose the index composition that we want to see and display the buying and selling power of the index.

FXPlus Specifications for Companies

It is advisable to install server operating systems, especially if a lot of users need to be served and in order to meet high standards of efficiency.

The amount of memory FXPlus consumes under normal conditions is around 100MB.

Satellite

For a working installation through satellite, we must have a satellite dish with a diameter between 80cm to 1m, which should point to satellite Eutelsat

W3 70 East. The system works in a unidirectional way, capable of receiving and not transmitting data. All satellite installations are accompanied with a satellite receiver DVB (USB connection) which will be installed by our expert technicians.

Internet

To achieve proper operation through internet, FXPlus must be installed in a network which complies with the following network connection specifications:

- Access for TCP packets in address ipdata.inforex.gr (IPs: from 95.0.13.101 to 95.0.13.110) on ports 80 or 443 or 8000 (for data streaming)
- Access for TCP packets in address data.inforex.gr (IPs: 95.0.13.100 and 95.0.13.131) on ports 80 or 443 or 8000 (for historical data retrieval)

The application requires approximately 40Kbps (mean values) for every connection and it has been checked for normal operation even with PSTN lines.

Server \ Client communication

Communication between server \ client is done by using modern Ethernet networks (without excluding the use of other network types, after proper configuration). FXPlus server is transmitting data by using UDP, IP or Multicast packets and protocols according to customer needs.

Database files exist in both server and clients to minimize the use of bandwidth in the network and the application requires at least 3GB free space in the hard disk drive for the symbols' historical data, either we have server installation or client installation. We can save the database to a different Hard Disk or folder on the same PC.

The computer user executing the application must have full rights in the installed folder without the need of configuring any other user rights in other folders.

The versatility of FXPlus server \ client connection is capable of creating installations with great potential of expansion according to the customer's needs (we can have FXPlus servers operating as proxies giving data feed). That means, if we have many branch offices we can have FXPlus server in every office, which will receive data from the main server and serving this data locally to users. With such configuration we achieve a significant reduce in total bandwidth.

UDP transmission supports of up to 50 clients per server as the Multicast transmission literally supports an unlimited number of terminals, as long as the correct setup has been made in the network.
