1. Be sure that your computer is turned on. If you are running Windows 98SE, Me, or 2000, you will need to keep your old keyboard and mouse connected for installation.
2. Connect only the receiver to your computer through the USB port.

Note: When connecting the USB cable to your computer, Windows will start a New Hardware Wizard. In Windows XP, it will complete the Wizard automatically. In Windows 98, Me, and possibly 2000, you will need to follow through the New Hardware Wizard with your old keyboard and mouse.

3. Install the batteries into your Keyboard and Mouse. Please make sure you follow the indication on the inside compartment for correct positioning of the batteries.
4. Press the receiver button.
5. Press the reset button on the mouse.
6. Press the receiver button again.
7. Press the connect button on the keyboard. The connect button is the green lighted button indicated on your keyboard by the word "connect".

Software Installation For Windows

98SE, ME, 2000, and XP

Note: The Keyboard and Mouse should now be functioning. If they are not, repeat the setup instructions and refer to the “Troubleshooting” section for help. When the Mouse and Keyboard are operational, the software can be installed.

Warning: It is recommended that you uninstall any previously installed keyboard and mouse software prior to installing your new Belkin software.

1. Be sure your computer is powered on.
2. Insert the CD into your computer’s CD-ROM drive.
3. If you have not previously installed Keyboard and Mouse software, click “OK” and the installation will begin. Follow the on-screen instructions.
4. Upon completion of installation, you will be prompted to restart your computer. You must restart at this time in order for the software to function.

Troubleshooting

The Keyboard and/or Mouse is/are not detected or do not work after installation.

- Make sure the receiver cable is plugged into the computer's USB port.
- For optimal performance, place the receiver at least eight inches (20cm) away from the computer monitor, the computer, any external storage devices, or other electrical devices.
- Make sure you have properly installed the batteries. Test the batteries to make sure they are not dead (you can do this by installing them into another device).
- You may have other system devices that are conflicting with the Mouse and/or the Keyboard. Check the IRQ/address setting of these devices for conflicts and change the settings as required. Please refer to your computer documentation or the manufacturer's technical support for assistance in making these changes.

- Make sure you have properly established communication/ synchronization between the receiver and the Mouse and Keyboard.
- If the Keyboard and/or Mouse are not working, make sure that the LED on the Keyboard and/or Mouse start flashing when you push any of the Keyboard keys, Mouse buttons, or move the Mouse. If the LED does not flash, check to make sure you have installed the batteries correctly.
- When the Keyboard or Mouse LEDs are flashing, the LED on the receiver should also flash to indicate they are speaking to each other. If the LED on the receiver does not flash, it means that the devices have not connected properly. Repeat step 4 to 7 of the quick installation guide.
- If your Mouse pointer becomes choppy on-screen or the Keyboard does not register keystrokes, replace batteries with a fresh set.
- If your Cursor is controlled by another system in an office or multi-user environment, try to unload the batteries, insert them again after 2 minutes and repeat step 3 to step 7 of the quick installation guide.

Uninstallation Process For Windows 98SE, ME, 2000, and XP

1. Select "Setting".
2. Select "Control Panel".
3. Select "Add/Remove Programs".
4. Select "Belkin Wireless Driver," then click on "Add Remove".
5. You will be asked if you are sure if you want to remove the selected application and all of its components. Click on "Yes".

The uninstall process will begin. Follow the on-screen instructions to complete the process.
